MISCELLANEOUS READING. THE LAST FLY OF SUMMER. 'Tis the last fly of summer. Lett buzzing alone; And its black-legged companions Are dried up and gone. Not one of its kindred. No blue-bottle nigh,

Or in the milk die, I'll not doom thee, thou lone one, A victim to be; Since the rest are all vanished. Come dine you with me Thus kindly I scatter Some crumbs of my bread

To sport 'mid the sugar,

Where thy mates on the table Lie withered and dead But soon you will perish, I'm sadly afraid, For the glass is at sixty Just now in the shade. When wasps have all vanished,

And blue-bottles flown, No fly can inhabit This black world alone. [New York Journal.

This aged lady, born in 1757, worked for the Countess up to 1793, when the ill-starred favorite went on her last walk to the scaffold. She lives in good circumstances, having an income of 15,000 france. TRAVELING IN 1775. Mr. Jefferson set out from Williamsburg. for Philadelphia, to take his seat in Congress, on the 11th of June, 1775. He travelled in a phaeton, with two spare horses, and it is curious to trace his slow progress of ten days, in a journey, which can now, probably be atcomplished in a less number of hours. Once between Fredericksburg and the Potomac, and again, between Wilmington and Philadelphia, there are entries, in the pocket account book, of money paid to guides! He took lodgings with Ben Randolph, a carpen-Remember thatevery prize is drawn, and All prizes of $1,000 and under, paid im- ter, who had handsome rooms to let in Chest-
